JOHN O'DOHERTY

John O'Doherty was born in Germany in 1984 and currently lives in London working as Associate Director of Sadie Coles HQ Gallery.

As a director with Sadie Coles, John is responsible for liaising with gallery artists, planning and executing exhibitions, promoting artists' work to curators, collectors, and institutions as well as sales through the gallery and at art fairs. The gallery has two spaces in London and represents a diverse group of nearly 50 artists including established and emerging artists.

Prior to joining Sadie Coles HQ, John worked as a Project Manager for Takashi Murakami. Based in New York and London he was responsible for coordinating museum exhibitions, brand collaborations, and liaising with the artist's galleries. John also acted as Sales Manager for Murakami's Tokyo gallery Kaikai Kiki where he worked as liaison to international artists and represented the gallery at art fairs globally.

John graduated with honours from the University of Notre Dame in 2006.
